Frances Billingham has studied metaphysics, Goddess spirituality and the occult arts for most of her adult life. In 1993 she became a Priestess of the Goddess when the Goddess Aset came through her during a Wiccan rite known as "Drawing Down the Moon". She was later initiated into the Alexandrian tradition of Wicca and founded the Temple of the Dark Moon in 1999.

In 2003 Frances spoke at the New Zealand Pagan Fest and led the opening ritual with Chief Druid, Philip Carr-Gomm. In 2010 she will be returning to open the festival with occult philosopher Ramsay Dukes. In 2004 she worked with international renown Wiccan elders Janet Farrar and Gavin Bone, and held the position of secretary for the Pagan Alliance Inc (SA) for six years resigning in 2006.

Frances regularly writes for Australia's No.1 spiritual lifestyle magazine, "Insight", with her articles also appearing in over 10 separate publications around the world, including the 2008 Llewellyn Witch's Calendar.
